

Responding to COVID-19:
Information and Support accessible to Young People
North West Glasgow

Prepared by:

Mary Kate Harte (Health Improvement Practitioner)

On behalf of the North West Health Improvement Team

May 2020

Introduction

This document brings together information and practical advice to support young people during the coronavirus pandemic. Findings from the *Lockdown Lowdown Survey*¹ have shown that young people in Scotland are concerned about the following:

- School, college and university closures as well as exams and coursework
- Employment and their financial situation
- Their own physical and mental wellbeing and the physical and mental wellbeing of others
- Social relationships with family and friends
- Ability to look after or care for others
- Ability to access their rights

This document aims to allow young people in the North West of Glasgow to easily access information and support around these topics and to provide information and guidance on staying healthy and well throughout the coronavirus pandemic.

Are you concerned about employment or your finances?

There are lots of national and local services and organisations that can offer free, impartial support to young people in order to manage your finances, budget your money, support with benefits and provide information on universal credit and student finance. The tables below provide details of a number of these support agencies, websites and helplines but it is not an extensive list and there may be other places you can access support. If you are a student, it is likely you will be able to access support with your finances from the student support team within your college or university (it would be best to contact them directly to do this).

Are you concerned about your own and others physical and mental health and wellbeing?

The NHS is still open and if you or your loved ones become unwell you should still seek medical attention. You can contact your own GP by phone or NHS 24 on 111. After a phone consultation, the phone operator will decide if you need to be seen by a doctor or nurse at your local Assessment Centre or to attend Accident & Emergency. It's important that you seek medical advice if you are concerned about your health in any way or if there have been any changes to your health that you are concerned about. If you experience any coronavirus symptoms you should follow the guidance from NHS Scotland (access here: <https://www.nhsinform.scot/illnesses-and-conditions/infections-and-poisoning/coronavirus-covid-19>).

There is a wide range of online and telephone support available during lockdown to support young people with their mental health. The information seen below is not an extensive list and there may be other supports available to you (e.g. from your own school, college, university or any other service/organisation in your area).

The service is free to young people living in Glasgow.

Are you concerned about your social relationships with family and friends?

Following The Scottish Government’s advice, we are all in lockdown and are unable to meet up with friends and family that do not already live with us. This means a lot of us are feeling isolated and lonely. It’s important to try and keep in touch with friends and family as much as you can online, by phone, video-calling, by text or even by posting a letter or a card. Reach out to friends and family if you are struggling, it can help to talk to someone about how you are feeling.

When we are all staying inside and feel we are running out of things to talk about it’s a good idea to come up with fun activities to keep things positive, like creating a quiz or creating challenges to complete with your friends – be creative.

Are you a young and/or unpaid carer? Does someone in your household need some extra support?

If you are a carer you can access support from your local carers centre. If you are a young carer, you are entitled to a young carers grant. If someone in your household requires extra care and support you can speak to your local carers centre for some more information.

Staying safe, healthy and well during the Coronavirus pandemic

There are lots of ways we can look after ourselves during lockdown and some of our top tips are:

- ★ Keep a routine – try and get up and go to bed at the same times each day, plan your day and make a to-do list
- ★ Keep yourself healthy – try to maintain a healthy, balanced diet, stay active and try to keep a good sleep routine (approx. 9.5 hours sleep per night for teens). All of these things will help you feel more motivated and keep your body healthy.
- ★ Keep in touch with family and friends by phone, text, online or post
- ★ Take part in online activities and challenges with friends and family to keep things fun. Or link in with a local youth group and their online activities.
- ★ Keep your mind busy with school work, studying, taking up a new hobby or starting a new project at home.
- ★ Take time out to relax and wind down especially before bed.
- ★ Keep yourself up to date with guidance from The Scottish Government and NHS Scotland but try not to overwhelm yourself with the news by limiting how much you watch or read each day.
- ★ Be kind to yourself and others.

Staying safe, healthy and well during the Coronavirus pandemic

There is lots of information and advice online and many places you can access support for a range of different issues or concerns. As well as all of the resources listed in the previous pages, we have put together some additional support available and where to access it. This is not an extensive list and there may be other supports available to you from different organisations and services in your community or that you are already involved with.
